

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Coatings (e.g., thin film glass-like coatings) are deposited on a substrate via a reactive ion plating deposition process, which results in completely dense coatings that mimic the properties of bulk materials and that are fully conformal on all types of non-planar surfaces, even when the coatings have microscopic thicknesses.